Applications are now open for the Chevening Healthcare, Health Policy, and Health Reform Fellowship at the University of Oxford!

Designed for mid-career professionals from China, this six-month fellowship brings together research, policy, and leadership to address some of the world's most pressing health challenges from ageing societies and antimicrobial resistance to climate and health.

Hosted by Oxford University and funded by the UK Foreign, Commonwealth and Development Office, the programme offers a unique opportunity to engage with global experts and contribute to the future of healthcare reform.
